Search

Using Unitrode Search:

If the search button is visible in the Acrobat navigation panel above, click on it and type in your search text. Then click "OK" to begin your search. If the search button is not visible in the navigation panel above, follow the instructions below for "Launching Acrobat Reader".

Launching Acrobat Reader:

In order to access the Unitrode Catalog Search Index you must have installed "Acrobat Reader 3.0 with Search" onto your computer. This program is provided on the CD. See the CD packaging for installation instructions for the computer platform you are using. Once the Acrobat Reader is installed, run the program and then open this document (Search.PDF) located in the folder "\Catalog\Products". Once you have opened this document in "Acrobat Reader 3.0 with Search" you can follow the instructions above to begin your global searches of Unitrode's Data Sheets and Application and Design Notes.

Acrobat documents displayed in browser window:

Note that browsers that are configured to display Acrobat PDF documents within the browser window will not provide access to Search Indexes such as Unitrode's. To access the Unitrode Search capability follow the instructions above for Launching Acrobat Reader as a separate application.
